Educational Background
I graduated from McLean High School in McLean, Virginia. Over the past 35 years, I've built my knowledge through real-world experience and hands-on training in the towing and recovery industry. I've earned certifications in light-duty, heavy-duty, rotator recovery, air cushion recovery, and more. I've completed training through Wreckmaster, TRAA, Wes Wilburn, Ross Kinman, and Miller Industries. I'm also a certified Train-the-Trainer for the TIMS program and completed the national Traffic Incident Management Responder course through USDOT.

Summary of Work and Experience

I've been in the towing and recovery business for over 35 years. I started out as a tow truck operator and worked my way up through every part of the industry. In 1992, I founded Road Runner Wrecker Service and grew it into one of the most respected towing companies in the region. Today, I'm the President and CEO of Road Runner, Henry's Wrecker Service, and Windsor Towing. Between all three companies, we have over 200 employees across Virginia and Maryland. Over the years, I've managed everything from day-to-day dispatch and driver operations to large-scale contracts and heavy-duty recovery work. I've led growth, streamlined operations, and brought in new technology to improve service. I've also worked directly with law enforcement, local governments, and private clients to handle complex towing and incident management jobs. In addition to running my companies, I've consulted with insurance companies and municipalities on towing invoices and recovery operations through Tow-Logic, LLC. I've also held leadership roles in industry associations and advisory boards, helping shape towing policy and best practices at both the local and state level.
