

community. As such, I believe a reasonable, yet deliberate pace of renaming these streets over time should be embarked upon.”

Many of these streets were named in 1953 through an ordinance (Attachment 1) that specifically stated that “streets running in a generally north-south direction shall, insofar as possible, bear the names of Confederate military leaders.” This ordinance was approved one year following the annexation of Alexandria’s West End (west of Quaker Lane) where many streets in the City had not yet been developed nor been named. This ordinance also came to be in anticipation of the landmark Supreme Justice Court Case of Brown v. Board of Education - a defining point in the Civil Rights Movement, which, as the Southern Poverty Law Center <https://www.splcenter.org/sites/default/files/com_whose_heritage.pdf> stated in a 2016 report, “led to a backlash among segregationists,” including the naming of streets and civic buildings for Confederates.

City Staff have developed a map (Attachment 2) and list of streets confirmed to have been named for Confederate soldiers in the City (Attachment 3), including their original name (if the street existed prior to 1953), and the year of the change, as also documented in City Code Sec. 5-2-62 <https://library.municode.com/va/alexandria/codes/code_of_ordinances?nodeId=PTIITHCOGEOR_TIT5TRENSE_CH2STSI_ARTCSTNA_S5-2-62CHNA>. A few of these streets were named for Confederate soldiers prior to 1953. The list also includes streets that are potentially named for Confederate soldiers, though unverified. There are also streets named for known segregationists/Klan members that have not formally been identified, such as Taney Avenue. The Naming Committee will use these documents to determine its prioritization for street renamings. The Committee will also consider how many residents and businesses will be impacted and the length of the street.

The Historic Alexandria Resources Commission <https://www.alexandriava.gov/historic-alexandria/historic-alexandria-resources-commission-harc> (HARC) will develop a list, with the support of the Office of Historic Alexandria, of individuals and locations worthy of honor by the City. The Commission is requested to pay special attention to inclusion of historically marginalized populations, such as women and BIPOC communities (as well as events and locations significant to populations that have been historically marginalized throughout our history), who have frequently been ignored through history. Additionally, the Commission will consider street names that had been retired previously.

The City Council Naming Committee is currently comprised of three (3) members of City Council.

- Councilman John Taylor Chapman, Chair
- Councilmember Sarah Bagley
- Councilwoman Alyia Gaskins
